Annual Roosevelt Ball Slated For Next Friday Night

The annual Roosevelt Ball, proceeds of which go into a fund for the relief of polio sufferers will be held next Friday, at 8-12 o'clock, in the Physical Education building, according to J. H. Dewberry, chairman of the dance committee. Similar dances will be staged throughout the nation, celebrating the President's birthday and raising money for the relief of infantile paralysis victims.

Admission to the dance here will be entirely on a voluntary contribution. This plan was used so effectively last year that officials in charge decided to follow the same practice again this year. Liberal donations are expected to raise the amount above last year's figures.

Plans for the annual polio drive will be announced next week by Dr. Guy H. Wells, who has been named chairman of the committee for Baldwin county.

Assisting Mr. Dewberry on the dance committee are Miss Iva Chandler and Louise Faver, CGA president. Dr. Gertrude Manchester, Mrs. Louie Andrews, Jr., and GMC boys will be in charge of decorations for the occasion. No-breaks and a program are being planned by Student Council.

Corporal Hargrove Bought Apples To SCW Teacher

By LOUISE WYNN

Did you know that Miss Ernestine Melton a member of our secretarial training department, taught Private (now Corporal) Marion Hargrove? The truth is she didn't really teach him, but she was teaching in the same school he attended when a session in Charlotte Central High School in Charlotte, N. C., in 1938. He was in her home-room for a while, and therefore she knew him rather well.

Miss Melton says that he has a quick mind and that he is very capable. When they were first trying to get ROTC in the high schools, Corporal Hargrove took an active part in the campaign.

According to Miss Melton, he has always taken an interest in writing, for in school he always entered into literary work and writing for newspapers. He always took an active part in extra-curricular activities. The book he wrote, "See Here, Private Hargrove," is quite typical of him and the way he does things.

In the program at Charlotte Central High school, you could expect the surprise of the day to come from Marion Hargrove. He had a good sense of humor and made things humorous.

He is not the only famous person who has graduated from Charlotte Central High school. Randolph Scott and John Scott Toller are two more famous graduates. Corporal Hargrove was an outstanding student with a lot of personality, and he was quite popular with both teachers and students.

Rain Makes More Than Colors Run

By VENNIS VEALE

"Run, little rain drops, run," says one of the newest melodies. However, Jessies were the ones on the run Sunday and Monday instead of the rain drops. Umbrellas bobbed to and fro; reversibles darted about the campus and squeals of dismay fell upon the air as a sudden downpour descended.

There can be no worse dilemma than to carry an umbrella around all morning when not one droplet fell, to leave it in the dormitory when the first ray of sun broke through; then to have it pour during the next class.... You dash madly for your room.... but the damage was done. (Your pompadour falls on the least provocation). Two seconds before the last whistle, you stumble into the dining hall.... a physical wreck.... but ooooooh, so hungry.

War Stamp Sales Over Half Billion Dollars, Album Drive Opens

Appealing Margaret C. Russell of the War Savings Staff looks up this new Treasury poster which will be seen from coast to coast. It pictures retailers' slogan, "SAY YES." A drive is underway for Americans to buy additional War Stamps to fill albums and convert them into War Bonds.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The nation's retailers from the tiniest hamlets to the mighty cities are acting as a spearhead in a great Treasury department campaign to sell the additional War Savings Stamps needed to fill more than 100,000,000 albums now in the hands of the American people.

According to a report released by the Treasury Department today, sales of War Savings Stamps totaled $599,777,000 for the period from May 1, 1941, through November, 1942.

Stamp sales have risen from less than three million dollars per month when they were first introduced to the public to an average of more than fifty million dollars per month at the present time.

Richter's Tacey Cromwell Spotlited

By NELLE ELLIS

Tacey Cromwell was not a "bad woman." Beneath the veneer of her bleached hair and her painted cheeks beat a warm and sympathetic heart, which in her life-time had known the pangs of regret, sacrifice, and self-denial.

Outler Of Duke, To Speak Here

The Georgia Methodist Student Conference will meet here February 19-21. The platform speaker will be Dr. Albert C. Outler of Duke University. Dr. Outler was originally from the North Georgia Conference.

His theme for the conference is "For the Living of These Days." He will speak Friday night, Saturday morning and night.

Others who will attend the conference are Dr. Harvey C. Brown, representative from the National Board of Education, and Mrs. Frances Baker Hagen, from the board of missions, New York City. Hagen is contacting students interested in active service in foreign countries in the post-war world.

The opening worship service will be a dramatic presentation conducted by the local Wesley Foundation.

Bailless Groggins says—

Yep! I'm back at work again. I figure on buyin' lots of War Bonds to help our boys. Don't forget—we're all supposed to be signed up for 10% by New Year's!

Wynn Named Head Of Book Campaign

Dr. William T. Wynn has been appointed to head the committee for the Victory Book Campaign in Baldwin county, according to the local U.S.O.

Object of the campaign, it was explained, is to secure a large number of good books to be sent to the various branches of the armed forces.

The book may be a current best-seller, fiction, and non-fiction, recent technical book, or human interest book. These books may be turned in at the library.

He further suggested that these books be assembled before February 1, so that they may be turned over to members of the armed forces at the earliest possible time.

Thus the Conrad Richter presented this courageous character to the reader in his latest and most dynamic novel of the American past, "Tacey Cromwell."

Richter has reviewed the West in all its dawning and spectacular color. His story is told in Arizona, where copper miners were luring flocks of speculators. Tacey arrived there to take on housekeeping after she had given up the management of a sporting house in Socorro. So lately condemned Tacey and forced her to give up the man she loved.

Knowing that she could never follow him, Tacey remained loyal and helped him to achieve his dream. There were still graver problems which Tacey had to face—problems which developed within her a strength of character that far surpassed her nature and her upbringing.

Conrad Richter has shown a marked ability at description. His language is individualistic and refreshing. Equally as ingenious is his portrayal of character—not only in his treatment of Tacey, but his vivid portraits of Cayle Oldaker, the financial power in Arizona; Sely Downen, the gaming woman whom only Tacey could tame; and Nugget, the small boy who won Tacey's heart with his touching innocence.

"Tacey Cromwell" as an unforgettable story, in whose pages may be found the charm and enchantment of a civilization that lived and loved when America was young and the West was a vast and promising wilderness.

THE WAY IS NOW CLEAR

On Thursday of this week our state legislature passed a bill creating a non-political board of regents; Friday, Governor Ellis Arnall signed the bill. Thus the way was cleared for the restoration of ten units of the Georgia Educational System to their former accredited standing. We can only hope that this plan will surpass all expectations, for Georgia schools have too long been the black sheep of the national education family.

We may say that in time of war we should not concern ourselves with matters as local as whether or not the work of our colleges will be recognized as accredited.....that it little matters if Georgia colleges are not accredited because in a few months our nation will be so involved in a war for survival that there will be no place in the scheme of things for higher education on its present basis. This is not true or will it ever be true. For every man serving in the armed forces, about 15 persons are needed at home to supply him with the necessities of modern warfare. Those 15 on the home front must be trained.

This last summer, we demonstrated our indignation at autocratic handling of education in a democracy.....Let us not be content with the partial goal which we have gained, but resolve that our schools and colleges shall withstand the test to which a global war must inevitably put them.

College Training Plans For Army, Navy Men

Washington (ACP)—As students left the nation's campuses for holidays at home, the Secretaries of War and Navy—with approval of Manpower Commissioner Paul V. McNutt—announced the long-awaited college training program for service men and service-men-to-be.

Loose ends of the dual program still need to be tied together. For example, just how men are to be chosen for the college work isn't yet clear.

Which colleges will be selected for training centers is another unanswered question, although Secretary of Navy Knox has said, "We will give special consideration to those (colleges) with meager financial resources whose existence is threatened by the war."

Main provisions of the plans, as they affect both Army and Navy, are these:

Army men 21 years old and under, and Navy men 22 and under, may apply for the college work.

Nothing in the new plans will affect existing contacts of Army and Navy with colleges.

Men selected for college training will wear uniforms, be on active duty and receive service pay. Soldiers will go to school as privates, seventh grade; sailors as apprentice seamen.

Civilian professors will do most of the teaching.

WIT'S END

New Educational Opportunities— —P. O. Box Dusting Is Latest

By JEWELL WILLIE

We are somewhat prone to praise the individual good which college does us and to minimize those experiences which are common to us all. Of course, we must admit that we don't react identically to all situations, that some reactions are so different as to change even a common experience....at least as far as face value is concerned. Nevertheless, there is one by-product of higher education whose effects are impartial and wholesale. In practicing this art we learn the rudiments of a technique which we, upon final evaluation, will admit is invaluable AND of a lifetime service.

This experience, is that of post office box dusting.

Our advice to all incoming freshmen, and those not so incoming as outgoing, perplexed by the problem of choosing wisely and well their extra-curricular activities, is that the first thing they accomplish upon their arrival on our Valhalla premises is the acquisition of at least one post office box. To junior class members, we recommend that each freshman be thoroughly initiated into the industrial art of cleaning and polishing covey holes for the accommodation of communications from this and the outside world.

We heartily desire that no freshman or other student, after once purchasing a desirable location be compelled to evacuate a post office box, for this change would necessitate a complete renovation of partially formed habits. Habit will play an important role in our life and unless we have obtained a working knowledge of the principles of upkeep connected with the maintenance of our own domain....we will never adjust ourselves to the demands which modern society will impose upon us. In other words, our post office box is our home, here (for the simple reason that on rare occasions it's epistolary contents bring us a mail part of the dear little village) and we cannot begin too early in our college life to keep our home spic and span.

"Officer or no officer, I'm going to ask her to let me try on that hat."

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

We wondered if you have noticed anything different on the campus lately? New standards are being set which we believe will eventually become nation-wide.

In the senior dining hall and the home management houses a "Clean Plate Campaign" has been started. We firmly believe that as students we can do our small part by preventing the waste of food. In order to do this, we should take only the desired amount of those foods which are served.

It is a fact that the people of this country waste from 15 to 50 per cent of the total food production every year.

We challenge other students of this campus to consider this of wartime importance, and to follow the pace already set by the seniors.

The Home Economics Methods Class

EDITOR'S NOTE: Such a campaign is a great need in this time of war, when so much food is being used by the armed forces, and is being sent to our Allies. Considerably less food is available for civilians; prices are higher; selection is limited. We may not be very conscious of this on our campus. We enjoy three meals a day without being confronted with this food problem. But, because we have been little problemed, therefore wasteful, the bursar, dietitians, and others, who are responsible for feeding the eight hundred and eighty-three, must be concerned for us. The problem is growing. It seems such a little to ask that students "clean their plates," and yet one multiplied by the entire student enrollment can make a tremendous difference.

THE WORLD THIS WEEK

That the Middle East and the Moslem World has finally decided that the Allied Nations are a safe bet in this war was demonstrated Sunday, January 17th, when Iraq declared war against the Axis partners. There has been a tendency to waver back and forth on the part of the Arabs. When successes against the United Nations piled up in Russia and Egypt, the Moslem world seriously debated collaboration with the Axis. The tide has turned; and Iraq's entry into the war will undoubtedly swing the rest of the Moslem nations into line, with the exception of Egypt whose cities and islands are vulnerable to Axis attack.

In addition to the accurate gauge of Moslem feeling that the action gave, there are two decided advantages to be gained. First, the release of British troops to aid the Russians; and, second, the possibility of complete control of the Haifa and Tripoli oil pipelines.

The British, it will be remembered, occupied Iraq in 1941, when Rashid Ali el Gailani, prime minister of Iraq, encouraged Axis activity in Iraq. The British put down many Axis machinations, but Axis agents still operated in the oil fields, and as long as Iraq and the Moslem world believed that the Axis had the upper hand, they would not resist themselves. Now the situation is changed; with Iraq in the war she is herself interested in keeping the country free of Axis activity. British troops engaged in this work may be released for duty in Russia.

There is no longer any danger of oil reaching the Axis from Iraq, as the Tripoli and Haifa pipelines are controlled from within the country.
